“ Over the last 40 plus years I have often thought about my good friend Calvin. We had many good times while he was living in Seattle. I tried many times unsuccessfully, to locate him and finally when I do, I see his obituary. Lesson learned: don't let the special people in your life go unacknowledged. Seek them out and share the positive impact they made on you. I'm sad to have missed the opportunity to acknowledge this wonderful man. I continue to remember our good time together Calvin. You will not have left us until the last person says your name
