David:

I appreciate your kindness when you allowed both me and my elderly mother to live with you for several months.

Though I moved from Nola and loss communication I prayed for you every time I prayed .

On the very morning that you made your passage I prayed and meditated deeply for your healing....not knowing that God had come to take you to a better place...and place you in the best of care. He came for you on the very morning that I prayed so intensely for you....which was my birthday....January 5 2014.

I wish that I could have reunited with you early (though we've known each other for over 30 years). I really felt I could help you. I guess it was not God's will. I am sure he has bigger plans for you and you will be well cared for.

I will continue to pray for your soul.

Kev

PS - Here's a poem you used to like that I wrote. I am hopeful that family and friends find strength in these words.

Since I Closed My Eyes

By Kevin M. Vidal

My eyes are closed now

I'm looking deep within

Seeing more than I've ever seen

Taken to places I've never been

I am still now

Finally I am at peace

This is what I've been missing

It's just the thing I needed

I'm reflecting on it all

From beginning to end

Putting the whole story together

Now it's beginning to make sense

Don't think that I'm burdened

For I am no longer in pain

Gone are the shackles

I am now free and unrestrained

I've been lifted up high

But not like a statue on a shelf

My soul is now illuminated

Take my spirit, just for yourself

Don't look around for me

For you won't find me anywhere

Just feel my presence

Knowing that I'll always be there

Smile at our good times

Admire the joy I brought to you

Reserve a space in your heart for me

And to your heart, my spirit shall move

Don't mourn for me

For I have gone nowhere

And don't shed tears me

For I know just how much you care

Celebrate the memories and joy

My journey's just at its start

Thank God for allowing me the honor

To hold a sacred place in your heart

I will be with you always

With each of you, all at the same time

Such a beautiful gift to both of us

Since moment I closed my eyes
