“ FAMILY:

To Wanda and Children this is cousin Janice and Aunt Hattie, we just want to say to all of you, to don't cry without hope. Even tho death has come, remember he lives in you and that he is closer than you may think! Keep trusting in the Lord, he has prepared a place for all of us.

To Lynette and Edith Eddie and Joseph and Cousin Wimpy we were not able to be with you but our spirits were there every minute with you.

Trust God he along can see you through!

*Janice and Aunt Hattie
We Love you All*

“ Up early this morning. With you on my mind. Just thinking how hard today is gonna be. How I wish I could have saw you before this day came be. It hurts. I will just keep in my mind the good times. As kids you were the coolest uncle. And the freshest. I remember you ironing your jeans for about an hour.Lol. But it was well worth it . A lot of people used to be telling me "that's your cousin" And I would tell them no, that's my Uncle Red. You were then and will always be. Love Jeanne' (Jay) 💕💕💕💕🙏🙏

“ My cousin Red death has really made me cry. I grew up in the same house with him. As adults we lived 3 doors apart, I watched Greedy and Dino finish high school. The death of my cousin has really touch my soul. " It's so hard to say goodbye to yesterday." All sins are paid and I will see you in the New System of Things. Much Love, Chatty Baby.

Red and I have always been close. He was my first nephew, my sister Dot's first child. His loss has been devastating. I know what it means to have your world completely stop; for your world to be turned upside down, to change forever. I remember the exact moment when that phone call came Monday morning. I remember thinking he can't be gone....how can that be? It didn't make any sense. I understand how people go through denial....I wasn't sure what to think. I still needed confirmation. It took me hours, if not days, after my sister had contacted me already and confirmed the worst. Everything now goes back to that one moment in time. Here one minute, gone the next. Feel as though everything is defined in terms of before and after. And in spite of all the hurt and turmoil, we all somehow move forward. Time moves in a surreal way. It seems like just yesterday we were hanging out on the levee on the WB laughing and joking. I already suffered one great loss with the death of my granddaughter For me, the hurt never goes away. From now on I will think about him every day. Sometimes it's going to be harder than other. Death is such a difficult concept for me to grasp. It's hard to put my feelings into words. Losing my nephew, my friend, my Babyboy is something that I'll get pass but I'll never get over. Sending love, support and sincerest condolences to Wanda and all of my Great & Great-Great nieces an nephews. You are forever in my thoughts and prayers.

-Eternal Peace- "Red"
