“ My heart goes out to you Michelle, and your family. I remember admiring how a mother of 3 could be getting her Master in Social Work, working, managing a family and being a wonderful mother/wife all at the same time. I am so sorry to learn about Krissy's death and your significant loss. I will be in touch with you soon.

“ *Dear Burl Family
Sorry to read about Krissy. It's sad to see this happen to someone so young with so much to look forward to. Despite the pain take comfort in knowing she was loved by all and their is the hope of seeing her again (John 5:28,29). In a world free of sickness, pain and death (Revelation 21:3,4). Their Krissy can be reunited with loved ones and reach her full potential. Now that's something to look forward to!*

“ The last time that I think I saw my little cousin was before I started having kids, she was young with pony tails in her hair. So that should tell you how long it's been since I saw Krissy, Chelsey, or Lil Reg. I came for a visit with my mom and uncle. The adults were having a conversation, so the kids had to scatter and get out of the adult conversation. I remember I went to her room and we were talking about something. I zoned out of the conversation because I was so impressed by how well she spoke. She starting explaining something to me like the way an adult would explain something. I thought to myself, wait a minute I'm the big cousin here. I didn't say anything, I just let kept on explaining like she was the big cousin. It tickled me because for once being a big sister to my brothers, I had someone else to kind of in a way to relate to. In that moment we just connected. Another thing I do remember about Krissy is how sweet and nice she was to me all the time. The only thing I regret is that it has been years since I've seen her or her siblings. We do have a big family but inspite of that we all have grown up and some of us have started families, we really don't know each other well. I have a daughter that is ten years old, and alot of her gestures and the way she speaks, reminds me of Krissy. Ever since I receive word of her passing, I have been riddled with guilt because I didn't have a chance to reconnect with my now adult cousins. Krissy's death made me do alot of soul searching, I think it's time for our generation of cousins to come together and reconnect. I am sad that someone so young and as special as Krissy has been snatched from this world but the comfort I get in this is knowing that one glorious day, we shall all have a major Family Reunion. To her Mom, Dad, Brother, Sister and Grandmother, even though I won't be able to make it to the service tomorrow, you will be in my thought and prayers. LOVE YOU!!!
