“ Hey ma I know you are not physically here on this board. But I thought to share a comment after ten years of not having you nearby.

I got married to the love of my life a month ago, my best friend Marquez! You would love him, and he would love you! Antie Hattie made it to the wedding it was a honor to see her there!

I remember visiting you the final time you were rushed to the hospital, and you were really weak fighting for your life, and I read you a card then told you that me and Arie would be okay and that you didn't have to fight anymore, it's okay we'll be alright.

That holds true till today however, I didn't know that certain family members would give me such a hard time to have a relationship with Arie. We are not as close as we use to be because they made her grow up without me over the years, nonetheless we still stay in contact now. She has a son; he looks just like her which makes you a great grandma I know you would just eat him up!

Grandma Mildred passed away and so did Brandon. The rest of the kids are grown with children or in a relationship. Nicole and Keierra still live in Dallas they have two big dos can you believe it. We talk almost every other day, it's nice to still have them around. I would like to go visit them someday, Marquez and I was talking about it. Marquez and I live in North Carolina you and Jammie would love it out here. I think about y'all all the time, Sometimes I really can't believe that you are really not here. It's a pain the Lord has helped me manage but one that never goes away. On the other hand, I have 2 mother-like figures in my life that I'm sure you would approve of knowing that they have a heart to take care of your Leslie. One of them lives back in Baton Rouge and the other is Marquez's mom I am currently building a relationship with her; they love me and I'm sure you would be at peace with that. All in all, I'm really going to miss you my friend, I promise that my love for you will never end! I love you ma!
