“ What a beautiful person Ms. Louise was. A true freind. Her heart was so huge and thoughtful. This poem I dedicate to Ms. Louise.

Not Ready to Let You Go

*I wish that I could tell you
I'm not ready to let you go.
But you've already departed,
And my heart is feeling so low.*

*I miss that little twinkle
That used to light up your eyes.
And I miss the sound of your voice,
Your laughter and your sighs.*

*But most of all I miss
The way you made me feel,
Like nothing could ever harm me because
Your love was so strong and real.*

*There are others here who miss you,
And they've gathered here today.
Your life touched so many people,
Who became your friends along the way.*

*They want you to know they love you, too.
And they're filled with sadness and grief.
No one really wants to say goodbye,
So we'll just wish you eternal peace.*

Godspeed, Love you.

“ My heartfelt condolences to the family. The few times I was able to be in your mothers company she showed me that she was a kind and beautiful woman. I know she will be missed dearly. I will be praying that your grief will be brief.

“ I've got so many cherished memories of Ms. Louise I don't know where to begin. Ms. Louise was my mother's very best friend . They always told me that neither of them had siblings, so they 'adopted' each other as sisters way back when daddy and Mr. Earl were best friends in the coal mines. When we were small, they would line me, Jimmy, Charlie, and Boo cross ways on the bed and make us go to sleep so they could play Pokeno. Because I was so spoiled, she always called me "lil stinker" and then would give me whatever I wanted. Because Daddy was dead, when she found out I getting married, she made me bring my beau to Powellton to meet and gain Mr. Earl's approval. She made him bend down and felt his hair to make sure he had good hair. (Thank God he did). She was right there at my home sitting beside my mother as Momma took her last breath, Ms. Louise closed her sister's eyes for the last time, looked at me and said "she's gone". I will never forget that as long as I live. I cry for our loss yet I know Momma is happy as can be to have her sister up there with her. I love you Ms. Louise.
