“ I went from talking to everyday, all day , to not being able to talk to you anymore. From visiting me everyday before going to work when I was a premie, you watched me graduate high school, become a mother, and so much more. Because of you, I am the woman that I am today. Thank you for being my listener, my shoulder to cry on and most importantly, my best friend. Mawmaw, I love you so much. I hope you are having the best time up being reunited with your boys, I know you missed them so much 😭.

“ Robi and I attended grade school and high school together. I am going to miss her beautiful smile and encouraging words. Sorry I can't attend today, but I will be their in spirit. She would send me encouraging words as I went through my cancer treatments. I just talked with through Facebook on the 31st, then I saw post ,that she had passed. Sending prayers and hugs to the family today. May Gid wrap his arms around everyone today. Until we meet again my friend.

The world is a little dimmer without Robi here. I am so sad that she passed away so unexpectedly on New Year's Eve. She was a bright light, full of sassy humor and pure and genuine love. I looked forward to her funny and inspirational posts on Facebook, which often times made me literally laugh out loud!

She was a fierce mama bear who loved her children deeply. Although she experienced great loss, when she lost two of her sons, she always maintained her joyful, Christian spirit. She was a ray of sunshine on a cloudy day. May she rest in peace, knowing how much she is loved and missed by all who had the great fortune of knowing her.

We attended Ursuline Academy together many years ago as young girlie birds, as our dear Sister Ruth called the students.

I was so hoping to reunite with her, after many years since high school, as we both share a love for family, cooking, reading and music, as well as humor and looking at the bright side of life.

I pray for Robi's family, as they navigate their journey through this very difficult time without her. Be assured, we will meet again in heaven one day. Remember what she taught us, that "God loves you and so do I." Heaven is gaining a new beautiful angel, as God proclaims to Robi, "Welcome my good and faithful servant. Congratulations on a job well done." Skip love, sweet Robi! Until we meet again, let's love like Robi.

Sincerely,

Shelly Powell,
